

Leadership and Sustainability for Community/University Partnerships

Michael J. Rich, Associate Professor of Political Science and Director

Sam Marie Engle, Community Building Fellows Program Director and Senior Program Associate

Office of University-Community Partnerships

Emory University-Community Partnerships Timeline

OUCP Funding Sources

- Office of the Provost
- Graduate School of Arts and Sciences
- Emory College
- Kenneth Cole Foundation
- Special projects/fee-for-service
- Corporations (in-kind & event sponsorship)
- Local foundations (event sponsorships)
- Federal grants

Emory Strategic Planning Themes

- Strengthening Faculty Distinction
- Creating Engaged Scholars
- Creating Community-Engaging Society
- Confronting the Human Condition and Human Experience
- Exploring New Frontiers in Science and Technology

Creating Engaged Scholars

- Experiential, interdisciplinary learning experiences for students
- Broader access to higher education
- Community outreach – local and global
- Comprehensive, learner-centered educational programs
- Creativity, art, and liberal arts

Advantages

- Existing breadth and depth of engagement
 - Faculty support programs
 - Student/academic programs
 - Community-based research and service projects
 - Community capacity building efforts
 - Training
 - Project design, management, and evaluation

Advantages

- Committed, passionate staff
- Leadership and advisory structures
 - Community advisory committees
 - Faculty advisory committees
 - Mentors at other institutions
- Strategic appointments on internal and external committees
- University leadership buy-in

Challenges

- Perceived competition for funding
- Departmental silos
- Fragmented development processes
- Magnitude of university strategic planning process
- Physical off-campus location
- Local politics